

King Edward's

WITLEY

Additional Needs and Inclusion Policy

Introduction

This policy describes the aims, policies and procedures of the Educational Support Department at King Edward's School, Witley. It is written with reference to the Special Educational Needs and Disability (SEND) Code of Practice (2014), Equality and Human Rights Commission guidance, the Equality Act (2010) and the Independent Schools' Inspectorate (ISI) Regulatory Compliance Inspection Framework – Handbook (September 2019) and should be read in conjunction with the School's policies on Admissions, Disability, Equal opportunities, Anti-bullying and EAL.

King Edward's School, Witley aims:

- To lead transformative education that is widely appreciated for providing excellence in a well-rounded and grounded education, encouraging a love of life-long learning.
- To enable forward-thinking academic achievement, exciting co-curricular opportunity within the context of a day and boarding school culture of holistic, attentive, and proactive pastoral care for the individual pupil.
- To enable all pupils to develop personally and flourish in a globally connected world so that they leave Bridewell with confidence, knowledge and direction as they look to their future.

The School seeks to ensure that every pupil will experience a happy and successful school career which will help him or her develop the requisite skills to become a confident, well-educated and mature adult, well equipped for life beyond school.

Aims

The aims of the Learning Support Department at King Edward's School, Witley are in line with those of the School; we aim to develop independent learning and stimulate intellectual curiosity.

Our goal is to:

- Recognise and support the needs of pupils with special educational needs, disabilities and learning difficulties.
- Manage and provide for these pupils using a holistic approach which considers the whole child.
- Enhance pupils' self-esteem and motivation to help them achieve their goals.
- To provide all staff with support and advice to enable them to fulfil their responsibilities for the progress and development of these pupils in their care.
- Work within the guidance provided by the SEND Code of Practice 2014.

In every case, we strive to ensure pupils have the ability and confidence to take responsibility for his or her own learning. The School applies a graduated approach towards support and specialist provision is arranged on an individual basis.

The School takes seriously the requirements in the SEND Code of Practice that:

- “Teachers are responsible and accountable for the progress and development of the pupils in their class”, and that
- “High quality teaching, differentiated for individual pupils, is the first step in responding to pupils who have or may have SEND”.

The majority of pupils who arrive at King Edward’s School, Witley with an existing diagnosis have one of ‘mild’ specific learning difficulties. In most cases, subject teachers will be able to meet the needs of these individuals within the classroom context using the ‘Quality First’ teaching framework, (see section on graduated support).

The Learning Support Department is staffed by the School's Special Educational Needs Disabilities Coordinator (SENDCo), who has the requisite specialist experience and qualifications to assess students for difficulties and, if necessary, grant Access Arrangements for Examinations. She is supported by two part-time Specialist teachers, a Learning Mentor, and two Classroom Support Assistants. Responsibility for the provision of EAL support and teaching rests with the EAL Coordinators, who are also qualified teachers, and report to the SENDCo.

All members of the department are encouraged to participate in continued professional development activities such as undertaking further qualifications and attending conferences and other training to ensure continued familiarity with current developments. The SENDCo also runs regular clinics and workshops for SEND issues within the wider community.

The Equality Act places an obligation on all schools not to discriminate against pupils or prospective pupils on grounds of disability. Where a disability is identified we will make reasonable adjustments, where practicable, to avoid discrimination. These may include ways of helping a disabled pupil to access the teaching curriculum in class, in activities outside class, and during the production of individual work, as well as via examination access arrangements.

Learning difficulties defined

A child is defined as having a learning difficulty if he or she:

- has a significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of others of the same age, or
- has a disability which prevents or hinders him or her from making use of facilities of a kind generally provided for others of the same age

Special Educational Needs (SEND) defined

A child is defined as having SEND if he/she has a learning difficulty or disability which calls for special educational provision to be made for him or her.

Special educational provision is educational training or provision that is additional to, or different from, that which is generally available to others of the same age.

Disability defined

A child has a disability if he or she has a physical impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on his or her ability to carry out day-to-day activities.

Four broad areas of need are defined:

- Communication and Interaction needs: speech, language and communication needs, including autistic spectrum disorder (ASD).
- Cognition and Learning needs; including specific learning difficulties (SpLD) such as dyslexia and dyspraxia.
- Social, emotional and mental health difficulties.
- Sensory and /or Physical needs; including visual or hearing impairment.

It is important to be aware that a pupil with a specific learning difficulty, medical diagnosis, sensory impairment or disability does not necessarily have SEND status. Similarly, not all pupils who have a learning difficulty or SEND are disabled.

SEND, learning difficulties and disability in the context of King Edward's School, Witley

In the context of King Edward's School, Witley, pupils defined as having learning difficulties will fall into the four broad areas of need defined above. They may be:

- pupils who are known, or suspected, to be on the Autistic Spectrum, which may affect their ability to communicate and socialise effectively.
- pupils with speech and language difficulties which affect their ability to use language efficiently.
- pupils who have specific or general difficulties in one or more areas of the curriculum. This would include pupils who have been diagnosed as suffering from dyslexia, dyspraxia and ADD/ADHD.
- pupils who have visual, auditory or physical impairments which affect their capacity to learn.
- pupils suffering emotional or psychological difficulties, or presenting with specific behaviour problems.
- pupils with an education, health and care plan

The pupils who fall into the last category are, in the main, supported through the pastoral systems in place at the School, under the authority of the Deputy Head (Pastoral). This system includes a wide range of members of staff such as: Housemasters/mistresses and their Deputies, Matron, Tutor, School Counsellor, School Health Centre and Peer support. Nevertheless, the learning difficulties identified in the categories above are frequently associated with (and may indeed generate) emotional and behavioural problems.

Admissions

All prospective entrants will follow the standard King Edward's School, Witley admission procedures. Entrance into the School is dependent on each prospective pupil meeting the School's entrance criteria, usually through achieving the required standard in the Common Entrance or Scholarship Examination (at 13+) or the Sixth Form Entry Examination (at 16+). Wider factors, such as temperament, personal skills and interests will also be taken into consideration, to ensure individual pupils are likely to thrive at the School.

Pupils with SEND and/or learning difficulties are admitted to the school if they meet the required criteria in line with our Admissions Policy. Entrants must be able to fully access the academic curriculum, with a reasonable amount of additional support (including reasonable adjustments under the Equality Act where appropriate) where necessary. It is important that entrants can be successful and happy at the school.

Each pupil with SEND or learning difficulty is considered for admission on an individual basis. They will require special consideration and where appropriate, adjustments may need to be put in place. In addition to making the School aware of any adjustments that may be necessary for the prospective pupil to sit the entrance exam, parents are positively encouraged to discuss their child's needs through a face-to-face meeting with the SENDCo once they have accepted the offer of a place and before they become a pupil at the School. Parents are then able to discuss the adjustments that can be reasonably made for their child. Parents are asked to provide a copy of a medical report or educational psychologist's report to support their request for adjustments for the entrance examination, for example, for large print material, extra time, use of laptops or other special arrangements. They should be advised however, that these concessions will be reviewed upon entry to the school and may be withdrawn if there is insufficient corroborating evidence to support the claim.

We also ask parents to facilitate communication with the pupil's existing school's Special Educational Needs Coordinator. Details of this process are available from Admissions. This supports a more coordinated transition from prep school.

Screening on entry

All our pupils are screened on entry to the School using a very wide range of tests. The results provide the information necessary to form a full picture of a pupil's needs, both independently and relative to other pupils, in order to confidently make decisions about intervention, support and allowances at King Edward's School, Witley.

Pupils are initially academically screened through the School's entrance test. EAL pupils are screened by a specific EAL entrance test, provided by the Learning Support Department. On entry to the School, all pupils take CEM baseline tests appropriate to their age:

- MIDYIS
- YELLIS
- ALIS

Additionally, new pupils from the 1st to Lower Sixth Forms are screened by the SENDCo for literacy.

Identification

Pupils may enter the school with identified SEND and/or learning difficulty, but others may also be identified post-entry through the School's monitoring systems or referral due to lack of reasonable progress. Wider factors (including attendance and motivation) are also taken into account to ensure that difficulties are correctly identified and supported.

Tracking and Monitoring

Pupils with SEND and/or a learning difficulty are monitored by the SENDCo using the School-wide Attainment & Effort grade system in conjunction with regular meetings with the relevant Heads of Year, Heads of Department. And Deputy Head Academic. Where a pupil is not making adequate progress, appropriate intervention and support will be discussed.

The Code of Practice states that lack of progress may manifest itself in the following ways:
Progress which:

- “is significantly slower than that of their peers starting from the same baseline.”
- “fails to match or better the child’s previous rate of progress.”
- “fails to close the attainment gap between the child and their peers.”
- “widens the attainment gap.”

Teachers are able to refer pupils of concern at any time.

In addition to departmental observation practices, the SENDCo and members of SLT also observe lessons, in order to review teaching strategies and pupil engagement. Follow up discussions are held to review teaching strategies and adjustments.

Teachers are expected to annotate their mark books with relevant information on pupils with SEND (either electronically or in hard copy).

Referral system

We operate a referral system to ensure that concerns raised by teachers, parents and sometimes the individual themselves, are channeled directly to the Learning Department. We can be contacted directly at ls@kesw.org and a referral form is available for colleagues.

Graduated Support

The first step to responding to pupils who have or may have SEND is the provision of high quality teaching, appropriately scaffolded for individual pupils. Much of this will be achievable within the classroom environment through such things as teacher awareness achieved by training, differentiated tasks and the use of ICT and other electronic aids.

Pupils who are identified as making less than expected progress can be raised as a concern at a number of monitoring meetings which take place after each reporting cycle (e.g.: departmental, Educational Support). This information is gathered and reviewed by the SENDCo. Careful consideration of each individual case, together with further evidence-gathering from other staff who have contact with that pupil, then allows a decision to be taken as to whether further action is required. Lack of progress may not be related to a special educational need. A pupil who finds a particular subject difficult may not necessarily have a “learning difficulty”; there will also often be differences in the underlying abilities of pupils, as well as their speed of working/learning.

Further support may involve either/both targeted or specialist measures. See Appendix 1: Graduated support. In general, most pupils with a specific learning difficulty, sensory impairment or disability will be supported through the educational provision generally available at School and not require specialist intervention. If 1:1 advice or support is required, it is usually arranged as follows:

- Lower school: sessions are arranged in identified slots on the pupil timetable or in the afternoon activity slot.
- Upper Schools: in the pupil’s free time or their activity slots.
- Sixth Form: in the pupil’s private study periods.

There may be times when interventions may only be possible at lunchtimes/breaktimes, in this instance, Learning Support teachers will ensure that pupils have a break and something to eat.

Progress is reviewed at every reporting cycle and pupils added or removed as appropriate. This decision is taken by the SENDCo, in conjunction with the relevant Heads of Year and if necessary, the Deputy Head Academic.

All teachers are well supported in meeting pupils' individual needs and any information held on pupils is disseminated in summarised form, with guidance, to all teachers via the pupil database. The aim is to provide the necessary amount of intervention and promote awareness of this amongst staff. Pupils with special educational requirements who are deemed eligible for access arrangements in public examinations will also receive said arrangements, where practicable, in internal examinations.

The SENDCo liaises regularly with all teachers, Heads of Year, Housemasters/mistresses, Tutors, matrons, the Health Centre, as well as the Deputy Headmasters Academic and Pastoral.

Training

The School trains its teachers to differentiate and scaffold within the curriculum and to take into account pupils' learning difficulties and disabilities (as well as the needs of gifted and talented pupils).

Teachers receive training in differentiation, adapting the learning environment and/or using teaching strategies to help individuals to learn effectively. They are informed about the Code of Practice and their responsibilities, and made aware of material changes as they occur. The SENDCo liaises with the teaching staff about the most appropriate means of meeting the needs of pupils with SEND. The SENDCo/ has an important role in ensuring consistency of approach by all teachers.

Teachers new to the School receive SEND training as part of their initial induction. Strategies for support within the classroom context are also discussed, as well as guidance around exam concessions.

The Staff Handbook and departmental handbooks also remind the teachers of their responsibilities for pupils with SEND. In addition, the Educational Support pages on the Intranet provide information for teachers on a wide range of learning differences plus practical suggestions on how to support learning differences in class.

The SENDCo supports all teachers, Housemasters/mistresses and tutors in being aware of, and proactively catering for, the needs of these pupils.

Internal and External Examinations

The Learning Support Department and Examinations Office work jointly to ensure that the needs of all pupils eligible for access arrangements are met in both internal and external examinations. The SENDCo ensures that details of access arrangements granted, in line with the relevant examination board regulations, are added to the pupil database in a timely manner. The Examinations Office uses this information for examination planning purposes.

Access Arrangements

The key responsibilities of schools and examination boards in making decisions about access arrangements (such as extra time) in public examinations are to ensure that no child is unnecessarily disadvantaged in an examination by a disability or learning difficulty, but also to ensure that unfair advantage is not given by the award of a concession. Schools must consider the individual needs of pupils, but also their responsibilities as examining centres in maintaining fairness.

Final decisions about examination concessions for internal and public examination rest with the School, in its capacity as an Examination Centre. Parents can help the process by providing information, but the School obviously has to avoid situations in which parents' actions might be interpreted as being in pursuit of unfair advantage for their children in a public examination. Thus, whilst we welcome information and will request whatever we need from parents in order to make a fair decision, the access arrangement decision itself cannot be made in discussion with parents. The School will communicate to parents the detail of decisions.

It should be noted that the recommendation of an access arrangement by an Educational Psychologist or other professional external to a school, is not in itself a criterion for the award of most concessions, and is not enough in itself to support a school in awarding concessions. The regulations do not require that we place any priority in access arrangement decisions on recommendations made by external assessors who are not working with the School. We will read any such reports with interest, and keep them on file, but we cannot act on their access arrangement recommendations in the absence of evidence of need from School sources, and it is rarely necessary to commission such a report where evidence of need exists. We have a nominated School Educational Psychologist with whom we have a long-standing established working relationship who visits the school regularly and referral to this service will incur a cost and can be discussed in further detail with the SENDCo.

When we make an application for an access arrangement for a pupil, we are agreeing that the evidence the School holds complies with the current relevant regulations. Failure to comply with the regulations will be considered as (at best) centre maladministration, which may result in disqualification from the examination for the pupil. The Common Entrance board (ISEB) does advise prep schools to follow the regulations governing (I)GCSEs and A Levels in their decisions about access arrangements for Common Entrance, but this is not compulsory, and some do choose instead simply to follow the recommendations of external assessors. For this reason it will be clear that, once a pupil has arrived at King Edward's School, Witley, the School will quite often not be able to continue access arrangements that applied at Common Entrance. Instead the School simply reassesses all pupils through screening and evidence-gathering. The regulations requires the School to reassess all new pupils anyway.

Information on pupils with access arrangements is available to all teaching staff on the School's database.

Links With Other Bodies and Professionals

The SENDCo, together with teachers and other relevant members of staff, works regularly with independent Educational Psychologists and Occupational Therapists, as well as closely with the School's nominated Educational Psychologist where required.

Collaboration and cooperation is sought and encouraged across all multi-agency provision to ensure it meets the needs of the pupil. This includes fostering links with other schools, professionals and external agencies, including Local Authority where relevant.

The SENDCo holds membership of PATOSS (Professional Association of Teachers of Students with Specific Learning Difficulties), BDA and is part of the SW Surrey SENDCo group.

Word Processors

The SENDCo is able, depending on need, to allow pupils to use a word processor or tablet in lessons and/or a word processor in examinations. See Word Processor Policy for details.

Charges

Should a pupil need additional support, which is deemed reasonable, from the Learning Support Department, the cost will be met by the School.

The full cost of an Educational Psychologist's assessment and report, if deemed necessary, is paid by the parents of the pupil in question.

Should a pupil require any adjustments (including auxiliary aids or specialist equipment in the classroom), the School will meet the costs where reasonable. If appropriate, parents may provide other adjustments, including auxiliary aids and services themselves, although this should be done in conjunction with the SENDCo.

Physical Accessibility

We recognise that some children with special educational needs and learning difficulties may also have physical disabilities. Parents and prospective parents of disabled children can obtain copies of King Edward's School, Witley's Accessibility Plan and Disability Policy from the School.

English as an Additional Language

King Edward's School, Witley aims to be an academically focused all-round school and pupils entering the School will require a good level of English in order to succeed. King Edward's School, Witley has provision for the teaching and learning of English as an Additional Language ("EAL") pupils to ensure they can access the curriculum fully. King Edward's School, Witley teachers will monitor EAL pupils in the classroom, but where it is determined additional support is needed, this can be provided in the form of extra one-to-one or small group lessons. This support is run initially for a 12 week period and is billed to parents. Should additional ongoing support be needed beyond this point, it should be discussed with SENDCo/EAL Coordinators initially.

Pupils who enter the School in the Sixth Form, where English is not the first language, receive guidance on and provision for English qualifications required for entry to UK universities.

King Edward's School, Witley recognises that some pupils with EAL may also have a special educational need or learning difficulty, but is committed to enabling all pupils to fulfil their potential. See EAL Policy for details.

Responsibilities

The school's hope is that all parents will feel able to share any concerns about their child with the pastoral staff in order that a healthy partnership for the care of their child can be developed. The SENDCo, other pastoral staff, tutors, teaching and medical staff who are involved with their child are always happy to discuss any parental concerns.

Whilst the SENDCo at King Edward's School, Witley will apply her best endeavours to assist pupils to whom the School offers particular support, the School does not guarantee particular results or outcomes.

Parents will always be consulted closely, where practicable, over significant learning support issues affecting their child. However, it must be accepted that the SENDCo is entitled to decide, with consideration, that a pupil is no longer in need of specialist assistance.

School Behaviour and Discipline

King Edward's School, Witley takes pride in its well-developed system of pastoral care for social interaction amongst pupils. All pupils are taught that discrimination, victimisation and bullying is prohibited and will not be tolerated. The School's objective is to ensure that a disabled pupil, or a pupil with SEND or other protected characteristic, does not receive less favourable treatment as a result of discrimination. Pupils are taught through the curriculum and other activities the importance of respecting one another and behaving towards one another with courtesy and consideration.

The School's behaviour policies/School rules make clear the seriousness of bullying, victimisation and harassment in all its pernicious forms, including racial, religious, cultural, sexual, sexist, gender-related, sexually-orientated, homophobic, disabled and cyber, in causing serious psychological damage and even suicide. Considerable teacher time is expended in preventing bullying, victimisation and harassment and in dealing with it when it occurs. All pupils understand that the School has a zero tolerance policy on bullying and that bullies can expect strong sanctions to be applied to them.

Dealing with Complaints

The School naturally hopes that a parent will not feel that they have cause to complain. However, should the need arise, any issues or concerns regarding SEND provision should be referred to the SENDCo in the first instance. Any unresolved issue will be addressed by the Deputy Head (Academic) and then the Head. Please refer to the School's Complaints Policy for additional information.

Alternative Arrangements

The School reserves the right to review cases of pupils with SEND who, despite all reasonable adjustments and supporting strategies being applied, do not appear to be flourishing in the educational environment provided by King Edward's School, Witley :

- the pupil is in need of a formal assessment, remedial teaching, learning support or medication which the parents are unhappy to consent to;
- the parents have not shared information with the School which, had the information been provided, would have made a significant difference to the School's management of the pupil's learning difficulties and/or admission of that pupil;
- the pupil's learning difficulties require a level of support or medication which the School is unable

- to provide, manage or arrange;
- the pupil has Special Educational Needs or Disabilities that make it unlikely he will benefit sufficiently from the mainstream education and facilities which the School provides.

This may result in the School asking or requesting that the pupil be removed from the School. In these circumstances, the School will work with the parents to suggest suitable alternatives that will offer the levels of support required.

Appendix 1 - Graduated Support
